FULL COMMITTEE

I. INTRODUCTION

In summarizing the Resources Committee's activities in the 104th Congress, both at the Subcommittee and Full Committee level, we believe that the Committee has addressed a host of perennial issues in a fundamentally different way from the past. We have demonstrated this through legislative initiatives and pursuit of aggressive oversight.

We have passed legislation on many matters which reflect the concerns of citizens from all walks of life—the people we were sent to Congress to represent. These initiatives included measures to streamline the management of the Department of Interior; reform of the Endangered Species Act; preservation of State control over coastal waters; improved management of the Nation's parks through increased self-funding mechanisms and management improvements; increase private property rights protection; mining law reforms; fisheries protection; improved management and protection of timber resources in the Pacific Northwest; and components of the Balanced Budget Act.

Our record on oversight has been aggressive, yet balanced and fair. Our emphasis has been on finding ways to make government function better and more efficiently, focusing on agencies that need that type of attention, including the Bureau of Reclamation, the National Park Service, the Forest Service, the Fish and Wildlife Service, and the Bureau of Land Management.

Some legislation was held at Full Committee instead of being referred to the appropriate subcommittee for procedural reasons.

This activities report reflects the hard work of the Members and staff of this Committee. It is a record we all can be proud of.

II. JURISDICTION

(2) Measures and matters relating to Alaska public lands, including forestry and forest management issues, and Federal reserve water rights.

(3) Environmental and habitat measures and matters of general applicability.

(4) All measures and matters relating to Native Alaskans.

(5) All measures and matters retained by the Full Committee under Committee Rule 15.

IV. OVERSIGHT ACTIVITIES OF THE FULL COMMITTEE ON RESOURCES

A. Introduction

Trans-Alaska Pipeline

At the start of the 104th Congress, the Committee on Resources expanded its jurisdiction over the trans-Alaska pipeline. The Committee indicated that it would continue its vigilant oversight of the operation and safety of the pipeline. The Committee was particularly concerned that the repairs and maintenance upgrades agreed to by the operator of the pipeline, Alyeska Pipeline Service Company, as a result of Federal and internal audits be strictly adhered to. Regular briefings and consultation were required from Alyeska and the regulating agencies. In addition, Committee staff planned to perform field inspections of Alyeska equipment and facilities at least once a year to assess compliance. At the completion of repairs, the Committee indicated that a hearing might be held to close out this particular set of oversight concerns which were first raised by the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations of the Committee on Energy and Commerce in the 103d Congress.

A Member field inspection of the pipeline was planned as a component of an Alaska issues field trip in mid-1995.

During the course of the 104th Congress, virtually all of the goals stated above were achieved. There were numerous briefings in Washington and Anchorage by Federal and interagency entities. Specifically, the Joint Pipeline Office (JPO) (the Federal-State interagency regulatory entity overseeing the pipeline) met many times with staff regarding the status of repairs and responses to a variety of employee and outside group concerns. Staff also met many times with representatives of the companies that comprise Alyeska regarding the Committee's concerns. The General Accounting Office also briefed staff on the status of the repair work, and JPO's regulatory effectiveness.

In addition, there was a Member field trip to Alaska in the Summer of 1995, in which Members had an opportunity to tour the Valdez Terminal and the Coast Guard facility, and to inspect oil spill response equipment to get a first hand report of the status of issues related to Alyeska's activities. There also was staff inspection trip in the Summer of 1996 to view the status of repairs at the terminal and along the pipeline.

While a close out hearing has not been held because of the pending status of audit closure items, such a hearing is anticipated during the 105th Congress. In the meantime, the Committee intends to continue to exercise its oversight responsibilities through close consultations with the Joint Pipeline Office. The Committee will also continue to receive regular briefings from all interested parties.

Alaska Public Lands

In addition to the Trans-Alaska Pipeline, the full Committee retains jurisdiction over public lands in Alaska, including forestry and forest management issues.

Congresses past have legislated that Alaska be home to 85 percent of the nation's acreage in the National Wildlife Refuge system (75.3 million acres), 69 percent of the nation's acreage in the National Park System (54.7 million acres) and roughly 70 percent of the nation's wilderness system. The sheer size of Federal land holdings in parks, forests and other lands have made Alaska a perennial concern of the Committee. The enormous mineral reserves, including petroleum, are also of interest to the Committee. At the start of the Congress it was decided that as the situation warranted, the Committee would consider holding one or more hearings on issues related to timber production and conservation in the Tongass National Forest and on potential petroleum production in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. Management of the national parks in Alaska was also recognized as another topic of interest.

Given the large number of new Members, including freshmen, the Committee planned an oversight field trip to Alaska in mid-1995 to acquaint members with a range of issues.

Several members participated in field trip to Alaska in the Summer of 1995 which gave them an opportunity to see first hand the practical affects of the statistics mentioned above. The trip included a series of briefings and meetings with state, Federal, industry, and Alaska native officials. Also, Members visited Valdez to look at the site of the 1989 oil spill, surveyed several working mines and fisheries, visited the Tongass National Forest and inspected portions of the trans-Alaska Pipeline.

Specific concerns regarding fishing, wildlife, mining, oil exploration, timber, and Indian issues facing the state and the nation were addressed through a broad cross section of hearings discussed elsewhere in this activities report.

Regarding the Committee's action on matters related to the Tongass National Forest, the Full Committee held five hearings on two bills. Hearings were held in Wrangell, Ketchikan, Thorne Bay, and Sitka, Alaska, on H.R. 2413, The Tongass Transfer and Transition Act. The bill proposed a legal mechanism for the State of Alaska to assume ownership of the Tongass National Forest and for the transition from Federal to state ownership. Most witnesses testifying supported the concept of State ownership of the Tongass, including elected officials, Native corporations, and other commercial interests. Many Alaskans base their support of Tongass transfer on the belief that Federal decision making with respect to the Tongass has moved further and further away from Alaska and closer to Washington, D.C. and, as a result, decisions are premised on popular, paternalistic notions of a surmised need to "protect" the "fragile" Tongass from human activity.

The fifth hearing was on H.R. 3659, the Environmental Improvement Timber Contract Extension Act. The bill proposed extending the only remaining long-term timber sale contract held by the Ketchikan Pulp Corporation (KPC) by fifteen years. The bill's premise was that an extended contract justified expenditure of approximately $200 million in environmental and energy efficiency improvements to the mill by the mill's owner. Without an extended contract, such an expenditure could not be amortized. However, the bill was not acted upon, in large part because of the Clinton Administration opposition. As a result, the owners of the KPC pulp mill announced that closure would occur in March 1997. Discussions are currently underway (December 1996) between the Clinton Administration and the company on providing a transitional timber supply sufficient to keep the KPC sawmill open for up to two years. Approximately 500 people work at the KPC pulp mill and 500 work at the KPC sawmill.

TASK FORCE ON THE ENDANGERED SPECIES ACT

I. INTRODUCTION

The Endangered Species Act (ESA) was last reauthorized in 1988 for four years. Since that time, the listing of the northern spotted owl in the Pacific Northwest, the golden cheek warbler in Texas and a number of other species in various regions of the country have led to widespread concern over the implementation of the Act, including its effectiveness and impact on property owners and communities.

The Task Force on Endangered Species of the Committee on Resources was created in February 1995 to review and study the Endangered Species Act (ESA) and the operations and regulations of any Federal agency or entity having responsibility in or for administration of that Act, to determine whether the ESA is being implemented and carried out in accordance with the intent of Congress and whether it is desirable to enact new or additional legislation on the subject matter.

The Task Force held seven field hearings and three hearings in Washington, D.C. (listed below.) (For further information see the "Report of the Committee on Resources—Report on the Endangered Species Conservation and Management Act of 1995" H. Rept. 104–778.)

The Task Force identified a number of concerns to be addressed in legislation, based on the testimony received from the witnesses. The major areas of concern are:

- Reform the ESA to balance the methods by which endangered or threatened species are protected while protecting rights of private property owners and workers, meeting public safety and health needs, and achieving species conservation and recovery.

- Provide protection for private property rights and provide incentives that would encourage private landowners to protect species. Compensate private property owners, through short- or long-term contracts, when their property must be used by the public for habitat for endangered or threatened species.

- Give the States a greater role in Federal decision making processes and encourage more delegation of the ESA to the States.

- Encourage voluntary measures that protect species.

- Streamline and simplify the process for obtaining permits or for using the consultation process to obtain approvals for activities in areas where species might be present.

- Authorize general permits for routine activities with minimal impacts.

- Require the Federal Government to share the costs of expensive ESA-mandated mitigation measures.

Limit the application of the “take” prohibition on private property to only those actions that proximately and foreseeably kill or physically injure an identifiable member of an endangered species rather than the broader prohibition on modification of potential, as well as actual, habitat.

Provide sufficient funds to pay for the programs authorized in the ESA.

Improve the credibility of the scientific decisionmaking processes, particularly the listing decision.

Protect endangered species and subspecies but limit the listing of “distinct population segments” to those of national interest as determined by Congress.

Clarify the distinction between regulations to protect “endangered species” and those for “threatened species”.

Give the Secretaries more flexibility after listing to set achievable conservation objectives for the species and develop conservation plans that consider economic impacts, relying heavily on the advice and assistance of a special assessment team.

Make better use of Federal lands already in conservation status through the establishment of the National Biological Diversity Reserve System.

Ensure that the ESA would not preempt other Federal laws and is implemented consistently with other important Federal missions.

Discourage unnecessary and frivolous litigation and ensure that all parties have equal access to judicial review.

TASK FORCE ON WETLANDS

I. INTRODUCTION

The Committee's jurisdiction over wildlife and fish extends to laws affecting the habitat of these biological resources. In recent years, the expansion of Federal protection of wetlands as biological habitat through the application of Section 404 of the Clean Water Act has had huge effects on land use in many parts of the country. The Task Force on Wetlands proposed to gather information for use in considering any Clean Water Act wetlands amendments which may be referred sequentially to the Committee on Resources and for further use in fashioning legislation pursuant to the Committee's primary jurisdiction in this area.

The Task Force on Wetlands held three hearings in California, North Carolina and Louisiana. The Federal wetlands' regulatory program under Section 404 of the Clean Water Act has been implemented as a national land use planning tool and it is viewed by many interest groups as such. The Task Force hearings resulted in documentation of tens of examples of how the wetlands permitting program has been used to subvert private property rights, take property, and harass property owners. The cumbersome and often bureaucratic permitting process touches communities in every corner of the Nation—from Alaska (with 170 million acres of wetlands) to Florida (with 11 million acres of wetlands). The task force heard testimony from farmers, ranchers, property owners, environmentalists, State officials, local officials and other interested groups.

Testimony from witnesses justified several of the changes in law that were proposed in H.R. 1330, which was incorporated into the House-passed Clean Water Act Reform bill, H.R. 925. That bill proposed regulating wetlands based on their value classification. More valuable wetlands would be regulated more strictly and very low value, abundant wetlands would be regulated less strictly or not at all. The bill also streamlined the wetlands permitting program by requiring agency permit decisions within 90 days. Wetland delineation would be made on a site-specific basis and on "clear evidence" of wetland soil, vegetation and hydrology. Mitigation banking was also established under the House-passed bill, as were general permits for States, regions and classes of activities for the entire country. Private property rights were also addressed with a compensation provision, which contained a valuation threshold after which property owners must be compensated if the inability to receive a wetland permit devalued property.

Members of the Task Force on Wetlands contributed to the refinement of legislative language based on task force hearing testimony.

TASK FORCE ON PRIVATE PROPERTY RIGHTS

I. INTRODUCTION

In the 103d Congress, the Committee on Resources dealt with several related issues which arose under the issue of private property rights. These included the use of eminent domain by the Federal Government, regulatory takings as a Fifth Amendment issue, the right to privacy on private property, the application of State trespass laws to Federal agents, and the ongoing public policy debate over the proper balance between public benefits verses private costs. These issues continued to resurface in the 104th Congress not only as incidents to environmental legislation (including ESA and wetlands) but also in relation to management of Federal lands (including regulation of private inholdings and buffer areas) and Federal land use regimes protecting historic, cultural and other values. The Task Force on Private Property Rights proposed to gather testimonial evidence and to study these issues for the benefit of the Committee in dealing with legislation in this Congress.

Private property is required for the capitalistic economic system envisioned by the founding fathers of the United States, who incorporated the principle of private property protection into the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. The property clauses of the U.S. Constitution ensure that government does not unnecessarily interfere with or appropriate private property.

However, several Federal laws and programs have slowly been interpreted by the courts and applied by the Federal Government so as to erode the ability of private property owners to use and enjoy their property. Two laws, the Endangered Species Act and the Clean Water Act (Section 404 wetland provisions), have been the basis for Federal regulators and agencies to place restrictions on the use of private property and even prohibit use of private property. Doing so is not ordinarily in the property owner's best economic interest and often does not improve environmental protection.

As the Committee on Resources undertook review of laws within its jurisdiction in the 104th Congress, the Chairman formed the Task Force on Private Property rights to examine the balance of how issues of private property rights have shifted in application of laws within the Committee's jurisdiction. The Task Force was Chaired by Congressman John Shadegg and four hearings were held. The Task Force heard from 87 witnesses including Constitutional scholars, property owners subject to Federal laws and regulation, litigants and attorneys with pertinent property rights cases, environmental groups, elected officials, corporate representatives and association representatives.

Task Force testimony established, for example, the following information in three volumes of Committee hearing records:

Congress has a Constitutional basis to legislate private property protection;

Congress has a basis to advance current court interpretations of the Fifth Amendment (i.e., provide greater protection of private property rights);

Property right infringements occur in wetlands permitting under Section 404 of the Clean Water Act when permits are withheld for mitigation of damage to wetlands;

Property right infringements occur in application of the Endangered Species Act when the Federal agencies demand that a portion of a property owner's land be preserved for habitat;

Private nuisance actions can adequately address disputes between property owners and Federal legislation need not address this issue;

Federal legislation need not (and H.R. 925, the House-passed Clean Water Act Reauthorization bill did not) infringe on State and local authority to regulate land use through zoning power;

The judicial process to enforce property rights from Federal Government infringement is time-consuming and expensive;

Property right infringements occur as a result of other Federal actions such as the rails-to-trails program and in designation of recreation and park areas; and Property rights infringements occur when unreasonable restrictions are placed on Federal permits (such as grazing permits).

TASK FORCE ON SALVAGE TIMBER AND FOREST HEALTH

I. INTRODUCTION

The Timber Salvage and Forest Health Task Force was created to oversee and report on implementation of the timber provisions contained in Section 2001 of Public Law 104–13. This legislation was developed by House (and then Senate) authorizing committees in cooperation with the Committee on Appropriations and the prime sponsor, Representative Charles Taylor (R–NC).

There were two timber provisions in Section 2001. The first provision was an expedited timber salvage program, which was designed to ensure dead and dying “salvage” trees could be expeditiously harvested while giving the Secretary of Agriculture complete and total discretion to apply substantive environmental laws (including forest standards and guidelines) in preparing and offering the salvage sales. Hard target levels were removed from the House version of the bill in conference. The second provision was called the Section 318 proviso. The Section 318 proviso provided sufficiency language to ensure harvesting of timber sales that were presumed in the biological analysis of the Northwest Forest Plan to be already harvested with no significant impact to the environment. Subsection (d) and subsection (k) of Section 2001 directed the release of those sales to fulfill the obligations of the President’s Option 9 Northwest Forest Plan.

The Task Force held six hearings, including one joint hearing with the Senate authorizing committee and three field hearings. Testimony from Forest Service officials, timber businesses, environmental groups, logging companies, State officials, local officials and other interest groups form the basis of the following observations from the hearing record:

Salvage timber sales reduce fire risk and can be used to clean up forests for restocking after fires;

Salvage timber sales are helpful by improving the health of forests;

Salvage timber accumulated on Forest Service lands after the 1994 fire season was 18 billion board feet, 6–9 billion board feet of which is commercially harvestable;

While the law provided ample latitude for foresters to prepare and offer salvage timber sales, the discretion was withheld by the Department of Agriculture;

Withholding discretion prevented the achievement of the level of salvage timber harvesting contemplated by the sponsors of the salvage timber law (6 billion board feet) over the time period of the law’s applicability;

Withholding discretion may have also contributed to the record fire season in 1996 (6 million acres burned);

Harvesting more timber salvage would have provided needed timber supply for mills (particularly small business mills) that rely on public land timber to maintain their operation and employment levels;

Because the law was not fully or properly utilized as contemplated by the drafters, those relying on timber for their careers, medical benefits and family income became or remained unemployed due to lack of timber supply;

Because the law was improperly implemented, the forest health conditions have not improved on public lands;

There was a high degree of frustration about implementation of the law among those who rely on timber for their livelihoods because the Administration did not properly utilize its discretion to produce salvage sales;

Contrary to claims by some environmental groups, the law did not result in “logging without laws” because the discretion to apply all standards and guidelines remained with the Secretary of Agriculture and he explicitly did not waive substantive laws, standards and guidelines for the salvage sales; and

Contrary to claims by some environmental groups, salvage sales were not old growth sales of healthy trees (some groups confused sales authorized by the so-called Section 318 proviso of the timber provisions of Section 2001 with salvage sales).

TASK FORCE ON INDIAN FUND MANAGEMENT

I. INTRODUCTION

The Task Force on Indian Trust Fund Management was created on May 21, 1996, to review and study the management and reconciliation of Indian trust fund accounts administered by the Department of the Interior. The Task Force held hearings in Washington, D.C., Alaska and Arizona on what was found to be one of this Nation's longest scandals. Billions of dollars of transactions conducted by Federal officials were found to be unreconcilable by Arthur Andersen LLP in a reconciliation study completed in 1995. A new task force may be created during the 105th Congress to follow up on the work completed in 1996 and to recommend legislation which will effectively terminate the Administration's mismanagement of Indian trust fund accounts which continues to this day.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON NATIONAL PARKS, FORESTS AND LANDS

I. INTRODUCTION

The 104th Congress proved to be historic for the Subcommittee on National Parks, Forests and Lands. Although the Subcommittee has a long tradition of an aggressive legislative agenda, the 104th Congress resulted in the passage of the Omnibus Parks and Public Lands Management Act of 1996, which is the largest and most important parks and public lands legislation in nearly 20 years. In a truly bipartisan fashion, H.R. 4236 includes measures that benefit Americans from coast to coast. Overall, the Subcommittee, under the direction of Chairman Jim Hansen, was referred 241 bills, held hearings on 102 different bills, and enacted in some form over 80 different bills.

The Omnibus Parks bill created several new national park units including the Tallgrass Prairie National Preserve in Kansas, to protect one of the last remaining unplowed stretches of tallgrass prairie; the Nicodemus National Historic Site, to protect a historic community established for freed slaves; the New Bedford National Historic Park, to honor the Nation's whaling industry; Boston Harbor Islands, to protect unique islands in Boston Harbor; and the Washita National Battlefield, to preserve a Plains Indians battlefield. Moreover, the Subcommittee included a unique provision to preserve the Presidio of California that involves the National Park Service and the newly created Presidio Trust that will allow private non-profit management of the extensive resources of the Presidio. The Omnibus bill also provides for the protection of the Sterling Forest for the States of New Jersey and New York through matching funds and State management. Much of the success of the Subcommittee can be measured in terms of finding new and better ways to manage our resources and the Presidio and Sterling Forest initiatives are prime examples.

Historic preservation and the establishment of new memorials were important parts of the Omnibus Parks bill. Included are provisions to further protect the Manzanar National Historic Site, Independence Hall, establishing a historic trail to commemorate the Selma to Montgomery civil rights march and reauthorization of the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation. Memorials were established for the memory of Martin Luther King, Jr., Black Revolutionary War Patriots and Japanese-American Patriots. Initiatives were also included to preserve important battlefields from Independence at Yorktown to Civil War sites in Virginia, Mississippi, Louisiana and Georgia. Eight new National Heritage Areas were established that will allow for the preservation of the customs and culture of areas through unique Federal and local management.

Other provisions of the Omnibus bill involve several land exchanges, including the Snowbasin exchange that will facilitate the 2002 Winter Olympic Games in Utah. The Sand Hollow land exchange near Zion National Park will allow a historic water agreement between the State of Utah and the Department of the Interior to ensure protection of Zion Park. National Park Service administrative reform was included to improve the management of the service, improve housing for Park employee, eliminate unnecessary reporting requirements and require Senate confirmation of the Park Service Director.

Overall, the 104th Congress will prove to be a landmark in environmental responsibility. The Subcommittee recognizes current budget and resource constraints and is finding new and better ways to preserve our environment, our history and our resources.

IV. OVERSIGHT ACTIVITIES OF THE SUBCOMMITTEE ON NATIONAL PARKS, FORESTS AND LANDS

A. Introduction

While enacting many initiatives during the 104th Congress, the Subcommittee on National Parks, Forests and Lands aggressively fulfilled its oversight mandate by conducting 23 oversight hearings on a wide variety of issues. The Subcommittee focused its oversight on waste, fraud and abuse within the National Park Service, the Bureau of Land Management and the Forest Service. The Subcommittee also sought out solutions to the problems identified in the course of the oversight hearings and acted on those solutions. In its on-going efforts to provide for better management of our Nation's Federal lands, the Subcommittee probed the mismanagement of funds, regulations that are overburdensome and outdated, access to the public, health of our resources and alternative management policies.

The National Park Service and the resources it manages were a major focus of the Subcommittee's oversight activities. In its proposed oversight plan, the Subcommittee proposed nine oversight hearings to shed light on the problems facing the National Park System. Seven of the proposed oversight hearings were conducted by the Subcommittee. These hearings looked into the financial mismanagement crisis facing the National Park Service, the Park Service's re-organization plan, historic preservation, subsidies to visitors, concessions reform, and public access and use of National Parks. These oversight activities resulted in significant Park Service reforms and important progress on many other issues. These activities were assisted by three completed General Accounting Office (GAO) reports and the initiation of four other on-going reports.

Recognizing the many problems and issues facing America's National Forests and their management, the Subcommittee on National Parks, Forests and Lands conducted ten oversight hearings in a systematic approach to identify and isolate the many complex issues facing the U.S. Forest Service. At a time when forest health in the West is in a crisis, the Subcommittee identified many problems such as salvage timber, fuel loads, impacts of species recovery, the Forest Service planning process, the Forest Service decision making process, eco-region based decision making, implementation of the President's forest plan, fire management and control, and the appeals process. Correction of all these issues is critical to a sustainable forest system for the future. Millions of acres of National Forest were lost to a record fire season in 1996 and the Subcommittee identified many of the issues that lead to this level of destruction of the Nation's resources. Although the Subcommittee proposed only seven oversight hearings, the ten that were conducted establish the basis for Forest Service reform that the Subcommittee will pursue in the upcoming Congress.

The Subcommittee completed three of the four proposed oversight hearings in carrying out its oversight responsibilities of the Bureau of Land Management. These oversight hearings investigated the Federal land exchange process, RS 2477 right-of-way regulations and Federal versus State management of public lands. These hearings identified overly burdensome and unworkable regulations that have severe impacts on those who live in the rural West. The Subcommittee found that the land exchange process is currently unworkable and makes land exchanges too expensive, too slow and too expensive. This resulted in Chairman Hansen proposing legislation to streamline the process and to make it more accessible to small land owners. Likewise, the oversight into RS 2477 rights-of-way found the proposed regulations by the Administration would financially cripple many local governments and would result in closing thousands of miles of roads necessary for access across Federal lands.

National Park Service (NPS)

Status of the National Parks: The Subcommittee proposed to hold a joint oversight hearing with the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee that would focus on a General Accounting Office (GAO) report which states that the NPS managers cannot provide any assurance that they are meeting the dual agency mandates of protecting park resources or serving park visitors. The Subcommittee held this hearing on March 7, 1995.

Budget Crisis Facing Our National Parks: Instead of a hearing on the Clinton Budget proposal, the Subcommittee proposed to hold a hearing on the broader topic of the NPS budget shortfall and funding accountability. The main witnesses were the GAO and the Interior Inspector General who were asked to summarize many reports of recent years. The Subcommittee explored these issues in a hearing held on February 9, 1995.

Reinventing the National Park Service: The NPS has a proposal for a massive and costly reorganization plan. The Subcommittee proposed to hold a joint hearing with the Interior Appropriations Subcommittee, providing a chance to work together with that Subcommittee while answering questions of concern to both Subcommittees. These issues were taken up during the oversight hearing held on February 9, 1995.

Heritage Areas: National Heritage Areas are an increasingly popular designation for which no NPS policy or organic act exists. The Subcommittee will consider legislation that will establish the Park Service's role in these areas. An investigation of one of the existing areas will help the Members understand how these areas operate and to what extent the Federal Government should be involved. The Subcommittee held a hearing on proposed generic legislation on March 22, 1995.

Presidio Management: Management of the Presidio Army base has passed to the NPS due to the Military Base Closure process. Much debate has occurred over NPS management of what is essentially a small city. The Subcommittee proposed to fully investigate the true leasing potential of the facilities at the Presidio, the cost to the NPS during and after any transition period, and what areas of the Presidio belong in the park system. The Subcommittee completed its oversight on this issue in the hearing held on May 16, 1995.

Natural Resource Management and Wildlife Management Within the Park System: A number of scientists have questioned the NPS policy of natural regulation, especially with regard to management of large mammals and fire. Some have even gone so far as to question whether the NPS is in violation of the Endangered Species Act in Yellowstone National Park where elk have been allowed to far exceed the carrying capacity of the range and have impacted several rare plant species. A hearing was proposed to highlight the need for more enlightened and activist resource management policies in our parks. Due to time constraints this hearing was postponed until early in the 105th Congress.

Oversight of Trail Usage and Programs: Congressman Bruce Vento (D-MN) and Congressman Nick Jo Rahall, Jr., (D-WV) had previously planned to hold this hearing and a group of interested persons from the trail community held several public meetings around the country to solicit public comment. They planned to complete a report of their findings this spring. An oversight hearing on this issue was proposed on what is probably the most popular outdoor recreation activity. It is important to define precisely what the role of the Federal Government should be. This hearing is now planned for the 105th Congress.

Concessions Reform: The Subcommittee proposed to explore ways to reform concessions policy without negatively impacting visitor services at our parks. The Department of the Interior acknowledges these problems and is seeking a way to reform the system that will benefit competition and retain excellent visitor services. The Subcommittee proposed to investigate several different types of concessionaires and the quality of service they provide and what impact, if any, they are having on park resources. Concessions reform was explored during hearings held on July 25, 1995, and on July 18, 1996.

Historic Preservation: There are an increasing number of issues surrounding historic preservation, especially with regard to protection of private property. Additionally, there has been criticism that the entire system is bureaucracy laden and needs serious reform to ensure that more dollars are spent on bricks and mortar as opposed to paying administrative overhead expenses. How is the Federal side interacting with the State side? Is there duplication of bureaucracy? Should the Federal role be limited? The Subcommittee intended to pursue these issues through an oversight hearing assessing the entire system. This oversight hearing was held on March 20, 1996.

Forest Service

Emergency Salvage Sales: The Subcommittee proposed to conduct an oversight hearing on forest health and the need for emergency salvage sales. During last year's fire season this nation lost millions of board feet of harvestable timber to fires due to alleged mismanagement of our national forests. In addition to the loss of timber, the Subcommittee is concerned about unnecessary loss of life and property. A hearing was held on February 10, 1995.

Appeals Reform: The Subcommittee proposed to investigate and hear testimony on the effectiveness, fairness, and efficiency of the current appeals process on Forest Service actions. Issues that were investigated included: Is there a level playing field in this process and are legitimate Forest Service actions being thwarted through regulations that are not achieving the just results intended from an appeals process? How can the current process be streamlined, and reformed to result in a fairer and more effective process? The Subcommittee held a hearing on this issue on June 20, 1996.

Administration Reform: The Forest Service is currently going through administrative reform. The Subcommittee proposed to hold an oversight hearing on this reform, looking at the impacts this reform will have on the Agency. Agency efficiency, accountability for funds and products, outcomes, savings and cost effectiveness will be the primary focus of this effort. A hearing was postponed until the 105th Congress.

Below Cost Timber Sales: Over the past years the timber industry has been accused of receiving subsidies due to "below cost" timber sales on Federal lands. In fact, in 1993 the Forest Service published a list of forests where all timber sales will be terminated due to an allegation of below cost sales. Others have alleged that the assumptions behind "below cost" sales are fallacious due to many factors, including cost accounting, Forest Service policies and other reasons. The Subcommittee proposed to investigate these issues to fairly determine whether Federal timber programs are subsidized. This issues was explored during a hearing held on June 20, 1995.

Forest Service Planning Process: An oversight hearing was proposed to assess the workability of the forest planning process and the Agency's plans for regulatory change. The hearing will identify changes needed, and assess the Agency's compliance with current authorities. Planning is governed by the National Forest Management Act (NFMA) and is impacted by the National Environmental Policy Act. Issues proposed to be explored included: What does the Agency identify as major problems with the present planning statutes and regulations? What impact are those problems having on the ground and on the timber industry? The Subcommittee held a series of oversight hearings on this complex issue on February 29, 1996, March 26, 1996 and May 21, 1996.

Northwest Forest Plan: The Administration has implemented the Northwest timber plan known as Option 9. The Subcommittee proposed to examine the successes and failures of the plan thus far. What have the impacts been on these communities and what changes need to be made to make the program successful or does Option 9 need to be terminated? A hearing was held on July 23, 1996.

Commodity Output Goals: The Forest Service is directed to set and achieve commodity output goals under the Organic Act, the Multiple Use-Sustained Yield Act, and the NFMA. The Subcommittee proposed to assess the Agency's performance in setting these goals and the failure of the Agency to achieve those output goals. Issues include what are the reasons behind these failures and what type of policy initiatives should be pursued to cure these failures? These issues were addressed in a hearing held on November 30, 1995.

Bureau of Land Management (BLM)

RS 2477 Proposed Regulations: The Subcommittee proposed to hold an oversight hearing on the current proposed RS 2477 regulations that greatly impact right-of-ways across Federal lands. This is primarily a BLM issue and the proposed regulations promise to close thousands of roads across the West. The hearing focused on the history of RS 2477 right-of-ways, legal rights of State and local governments, the financial and administrative burden placed on these governments to comply with the regulations and the impacts these regulations will have on the surrounding communities. The Subcommittee held a hearing on March, 16, 1995.

Federal versus State Management of Public Lands: The BLM has been accused of subsidizing grazing, timber and other commodity uses on public lands. There is an increasing interest in turning these management responsibilities over to the States where they so desire. Advocates say this will lift the burden off the Federal Government and give the States more control over the lands within their borders. There is increasing opinion that the States manage their public lands more efficiently and are producing resources in better condition than those managed by the BLM. The Subcommittee proposed to analyze the possibilities of State management of these lands and the fiscal impacts on both the Federal and State Governments. This issue was heard during a June 20, 1995, hearing.

BLM Land Exchange Process: Currently the BLM administratively exchanges Federal BLM lands identified for disposal for State or private lands identified for acquisition by the BLM. This process provides a way for the BLM to meet its mission and allows inholders and other private interests to resolve Federal ownership problems. An exchange under perfect conditions takes approximately two years to complete at enormous cost. Thus, only large and/or wealthy inholders are able to take advantage of this process. The Subcommittee proposed to hold an oversight hearing on the program and look into ways the program can be streamlined and opened up to small landowners. A hearing was held on May 9, 1995.

BLM Management of Wild Horses and Burros: Under the Wild and Free Roaming Horses and Burros Act, these animals are protected and managed by the BLM. These species create serious resource management problems. The BLM has spent millions of dollars attempting to manage these animals through adoption programs, sterilization experiments and other methods. The Subcommittee proposed to look at the success and failures of this program and look into the needs and shortfalls of the program. This hearing is now planned for the 105th Congress.

Miscellaneous Issues

Wilderness Criteria and Wilderness Management: The Subcommittee proposed to explore the implementation of the 1964 Wilderness Act, including wilderness area under the 1964 Wilderness Act. This issue became very controversial during debate of the California Desert Protection Act in the 103d Congress: specifically, what does "roadless" mean? The Subcommittee proposed to look at examples of areas designated as wilderness to determine if they comply with the 1964 Act and will explore amendments to the Act to resolve future issues. This issue will be explored during the 105th Congress.

Recreational User Fees on Federal Lands: Recreational use of Federal lands receives an annual subsidy of $1.2 billion. The Subcommittee planned to conduct an oversight hearing on the recreational use of all Federal lands to determine how these uses can become more self-sufficient. This hearing was held on May 11, 1995.

Single Land Use Agency: Currently, management of Federal lands is conducted by four different agencies: Forest Service, National Park Service, Bureau of Land Management, and the Fish and Wildlife Service. These agencies have very similar missions and their activities often overlap and are only separated by political boundaries that do not make management sense. The Subcommittee proposed to look into the feasibility of combining these functions into a single land management agency. This inquiry will discuss possible efficiencies, united policy directions, cost savings and other management advantages. The Subcommittee did not hold a hearing on this issue.

Wild and Scenic River Act Study Designations: Currently, once a river is designated for study under the Act, it stays in this status until the study is completed, and then up to three additional years. The Subcommittee proposed to look at the effects this has had on river management and the effects on private interests on and around these study rivers. The Subcommittee will hold this hearing during the 105th Congress.

Ecosystem Management: Ecosystem management is the new buzz word in Federal lands management. While numerous agencies claim to be practicing it, no one is quite sure exactly what it is. The Administration has several pilot projects, one of the most visible is South Florida where the cost to implement ecosystem management is estimated to be $1–4 billion. An oversight hearing was proposed to examine this program as well as some of the underlying scientific assumptions. This issue was explored during a hearing held on May 21, 1996.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON FISHERIES, WILDLIFE AND OCEANS

I. INTRODUCTION

Embodying the majority of the jurisdiction of the former Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries (abolished at the beginning of the 104th Congress), the Subcommittee on Fisheries, Wildlife and Oceans brought a new set of complimentary issues to the Members of the Resources Committee.

Drawing on its bi-coastal membership, the Subcommittee, under the leadership of Chairman Jim Saxton of Mt. Holly, New Jersey, explored topics ranging from the bottom of the ocean to the top of the world in the Arctic.

During the first Republican-controlled Congress in over 40 years, Chairman Saxton promoted the goal of reducing the size of the Federal Government by transferring title to seven Federal fish hatcheries to State and local control; Federal ocean programs were streamlined to increase effectiveness, reduce bureaucratic costs, and improve Federal-State coordination; realistic funding levels were implemented for the Coastal Zone Management Program, the National Marine Sanctuaries Program, the National Sea Grant College Program, and other environmental laws to reflect budget constraints; user fees were established to recover costs from a small group of farmers who have requested fisheries certification from the Federal Government; private property rights were recognized in Federal land use decisions; a balance was created between the need to protect fish and wildlife populations and compatible multiple uses of public lands; the wise expenditure of taxpayers money was ensured by demanding greater accountability of Federal programs through increased oversight; free trade in fisheries and wildlife areas was promoted; and cutting-edge technology and its application in frontier regions was examined.

The Subcommittee also had an extremely successful legislative agenda during its debut Congress. Major bills originating in the Subcommittee include:

Fisheries Act of 1995 (Public Law 104-43)

This comprehensive conservation measure provides effective solutions to properly manage and protect international fishery stocks. It requires the issuance of fishing permits to U.S. vessels on the high seas; reauthorizes the Fishermen's Protective Act; protects pollock stocks in the Sea of Okhotsk; encourages the global ban on driftnets; extends U.S. participation in International Convention for the Conservation of Atlantic Tunas; and implements U.S.-Canada salmon agreement.

Coastal Zone Protection Act (Public Law 104–150)

This legislation extends the landmark Coastal Zone Management Act of 1972, which encourages States to regulate land and water uses that affect their coastal environment. Twenty-nine of the 35 eligible coastal States and territories have Federally approved coastal zone management plans. These plans provide essential protection to 95,000 miles of coastline or almost 95 percent of our Nation's total.

National Marine Sanctuaries Preservation Act (Public Law 104–238)

This measure reauthorizes the National Marine Sanctuaries Act of 1972. The primary objective of this vital environmental law is to protect marine resources, such as coral reefs, sunken historical vessels, or unique habitats, while facilitating all “compatible” uses of those resources.

Sustainable Fisheries Act of 1996 (Public Law 104–297)

The fundamental goal of this Act is to improve the conservation and management of Federal fishery resources within the U.S. Exclusive Economic Zone. This legislation reauthorizes the historic Magnuson Fishery Conservation and Management Act and it addresses a number of problems identified by the eight Regional Fishery Management Councils.

National Wildlife Refuge Improvement Act of 1996

This legislation amends the National Wildlife Refuge Administration Act of 1966 to improve the management of our Nation's National Wildlife Refuge System. This System needs to have a statutory list of purposes, uniform guidelines to determine what activities are permissible, comprehensive conservation plans, and the enthusiastic support of the American people.

IV. OVERSIGHT ACTIVITIES OF THE SUBCOMMITTEE ON FISHERIES, WILDLIFE AND OCEANS

A. Introduction

Budget Review

The Subcommittee proposed to hold an oversight hearing to evaluate the President's Fiscal Year (FY) 1996 budget recommendations for the National Marine Fisheries Service and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. In addition, the Subcommittee proposed to review selected programs administered by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA).

On February 16, 1995, the Subcommittee conducted a budget oversight hearing. Testimony was obtained from Dr. D. James Baker, Department of Commerce, Mr. George T. Frampton, Department of the Interior, and Ms. Mollie Beattie, Director, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

During the Winter of 1996 the Subcommittee proposed to hold an oversight hearing on the President's fiscal year 1997 budget recommendations for the National Marine Fisheries Service, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and the "wet" NOAA programs.

On March 27, 1996, the Subcommittee conducted an oversight hearing on the Administration's fiscal year 1997 budget recommendations. Testimony was obtained from a number of individuals including: Dr. D. James Baker, Department of Commerce, Dr.

Robert W. Correll, National Science Foundation, and Dr. Andrew Solow, Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute.

National Marine Fisheries Services

Oversight Hearing on Various Fish Statutes: On Wednesday, January 25, 1995, the Subcommittee held the first of a series of oversight hearings on our Nation's major fish, wildlife and oceanography laws. At that time, testimony was received on the following statutes:

(1) Fishermen's Protective Act of 1967. Authorization for the Fishermen's Guaranty Fund expired on September 30, 1993. This Fund, which is voluntary and self-financed, compensates U.S. fishermen for the seizure of their boats and catch by a foreign country. Last year, 258 U.S. fishermen were forced to pay $1,100 each to the Canadian Government for sailing through the Inside Passage. These "transit fees" were illegal and the Fishermen's Protective Act was amended by Public Law 104-43 to allow these Americans to be compensated for their financial loss.

(2) Atlantic Tunas Convention Act of 1975. This statute authorizes the United States participation in the International Convention for the Conservation of Atlantic Tunas. Its authorization of appropriations expired September 30, 1993, but was extended by Public Law 104-43.

(3) The Central Bering Sea Fisheries Enforcement Act. This measure prohibited U.S. fishermen from fishing in an area of international waters off the coast of Russia known as the Donut Hole. Legislation was enacted (Public Law 104-43) to extend this prohibition to another area known as the Peanut Hole.

On November 3, 1995, the President signed H.R. 716, the Fisheries Act of 1995, into law. Incorporated within this measure was a reauthorization of the Fishermen's Protective Act of 1967 and the Atlantic Tunas Convention Act of 1975. In addition, the Act implemented the Central Bering Sea Fisheries Enforcement Act, which will protect valuable pollack fishery stocks in the Sea of Okhotsk.

Magnuson Fishery Conservation and Management Act: This Act provides a national program for the conservation and management of the Nation's marine fishery resources within our 200-mile Exclusive Economic Zone. The Act established eight Regional Fishery Management Councils that have primary responsibility for managing the fishery resources outside of State waters. The authorization for this Act expired on September 30, 1993. On October 11, 1996, the Sustainable Fisheries Act of 1996 became law (Public Law 104-297). This legislation reauthorizes and reforms the Magnuson Fishery Conservation and Management Act. The fundamental purpose of this law is to conserve and manage the Federal fishery resources within the U.S. Exclusive Economic Zone.

Fish and Wildlife Service

Wildlife Management on Military Lands: The Sikes Act governs the management of wildlife on Department of Defense lands. The law's authorization for appropriations expired on September 30, 1993. During the 104th Congress, the House approved by voice vote H.R. 1141, the Sikes Act Improvement Amendments, on July 11, 1995. In addition, the provisions of this bill were incorporated within the House's version of the National Defense Authorization Act (H.R. 323). Unfortunately, this provision was removed from the bill in Conference.

National Wildlife Refuge System: The Subcommittee has jurisdiction over more than 91 million acres of Federal lands within the National Wildlife Refuge System. The Subcommittee conducted several oversight hearings on our Nation's National Wildlife Refuge System (H.R. 1675). It also took a leadership role in moving the National Wildlife Refuge Improvement Act. This landmark legislation was approved by the House of Representatives on April 24, 1996. The Senate took no action on this proposal.

National Fish and Wildlife Foundation: The National Fish and Wildlife Foundation assists in implementation of the North American Waterfowl Management Plan and provides matching funds for conservation activities nationwide. The law establishing the Foundation expires on September 30, 1998. On May 16, 1996, the Subcommittee conducted an oversight hearing on the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation. Testimony was heard from the Honorable Helen Chenoweth (R-ID), the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and public witnesses.

National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA)

Anadromous Fish Conservation Act: This Act has been primarily a Federal grant program to the States to assist them in the management and conservation of various anadromous species, which are fish that migrate up rivers from the sea to reproduce in fresh water. Since in recent years there have been separate initiatives for several high-profile anadromous species, such as salmon, steelhead, and Atlantic striped bass, the Subcommittee examined the ongoing need for this program and whether its authorization of appropriations should be extended beyond September 30, 1995. The Anadromous Fish Conservation Act of 1965 was reauthorized until September 30, 2000, by Public Law 104-297 (Sustainable Fisheries Act of 1996).

Atlantic Striped Bass Conservation Act: This Act provides Federal support for the enforcement of the Atlantic States Marine Fisheries Commission (ASMFC) striped bass management program to conserve this species. Individual States are required to implement management measures for their own waters consistent with the ASMFC Interstate Management Plan for striped bass. The authorization of appropriations for this Act expired on September 30, 1993. The House of Representatives on two separate occasions (H.R. 1139 and H.R. 4139) approved legislation to extend this important conservation measure, which has been largely responsible for the recovery of the Atlantic striped bass. Sadly, the Senate took no action on either measure.

National Sea Grant College Program: This is a program that serves the marine science and business community. There are 29 university-based State Sea Grant College programs which fund marine resource based research and provide marine advisory service. The program also provides a limited number of fellowships in marine affairs. Authorization of appropriations for the program expired on September 30, 1995. The Subcommittee conducted an oversight hearing on the National Sea Grant College Program and approved a three-year reauthorization measure. The House of Representatives took no action on H.R. 1175, the Marine Resources Revitalization Act.

Interjurisdictional Fisheries: The Interjurisdictional Fisheries Act of 1986 is designed to provide management of interjurisdictional fishery resources throughout their range, as well as encourage State participation in management. The Act expired on September 30, 1995. Authorization of appropriations for three years for the Act was incorporated within Public Law 104-297, the Sustainable Fisheries Act of 1996.

Coastal Zone Management Act (CZMA): Last authorized in 1990, this program encourages States to develop land use and near shore management programs based on State and local laws to better utilize and protect coastal resources. A State may veto certain Federally-permitted activities if that activity is not consistent with the State's program. Authorization for appropriations expired on September 30, 1995. On May 21, 1996, the President signed H.R. 1965, the Coastal Zone Protection Act, into law (Public Law 104-150). This legislation reauthorized funding for the Coastal Zone Management Act program development, administrative, resource management, enhancement, technical assistance, and estuarine grants until September 30, 1999.

NOAA Corps: NOAA has under its jurisdiction a 405-person uniformed corps that is trained in both science and vessel operations. The Corps, which operates 18 active vessels and 10 aircraft, receives military type pay and benefits. On June 15, 1995, the Subcommittee conducted an oversight hearing on the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's ocean and coastal programs. Testimony was received on a wide range of NOAA programs, including its uniformed corps. The Corps was proposed for phase-out and elimination in H.R. 1756, a bill to abolish the Department of Commerce.

NOAA's Generic Laws: The Subcommittee proposed to hold hearings on those NOAA programs and responsibilities under the jurisdiction of the Committee on Resources. On June 15, 1995, the Subcommittee conducted an oversight hearing on the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's ocean and coastal programs. Testimony was received on a wide range of NOAA programs.

Seafood Safety and Inspection Programs: Legislation to develop an expanded, mandatory national seafood safety program has been introduced and debated at length in previous Congresses. There is an ongoing debate over who should be the lead agency for seafood safety, the Food and Drug Administration, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, or the Agriculture Department. The Subcommittee proposed to hold an oversight hearing on this subject in Winter 1996, but took no action on this issue.

Fish Passages Technologies: Last Congress, the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries requested that the Office of Technology Assessment prepare a report on the state of technology of fish passages and other systems for transferring hatchlings around Federal power projects. The Subcommittee proposed to have a hearing to assess this report in Winter 1996. The Subcommittee took no action on this issue.

Aquaculture: Each year, Federal funds are appropriated to the National Marine Fisheries Service to promote the growth of the marine aquaculture industry. The Subcommittee proposed to hold an oversight hearing to evaluate the effectiveness of this program and whether continued investment by the Federal Government is warranted, but it took no action on this issue.

Dolphin/Tuna Issue: The Subcommittee has received information that several of our trading partners are being harmed by the embargo on any tuna caught using certain methods of capture involving dolphins. The Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission has recommended tuna capture methods that include dolphins, but which have reduced dolphin deaths to extremely low levels. Several foreign governments have requested that the U.S. take another look at our embargo due to these new techniques. The Subcommittee proposed to hold an oversight hearing in Spring 1996. During the 104th Congress, the Subcommittee conducted an oversight hearing on this issue and a legislative hearing on H.R. 2823, the International Dolphin Conservation Program Act. On July 31, 1996, the House of Representatives approved this legislation, which implements the international agreement known as the "Panama Declaration".

Pacific Salmon Treaty: The United States and Canada signed the Pacific Salmon Treaty in 1985. Since then, the two countries have met numerous times to further negotiate outstanding issues related to the Treaty. The U.S. is currently preparing an offer to resolve several critical issues. The Subcommittee proposed to hold an oversight hearing on these negotiations in Spring or Summer 1996. The Subcommittee did not hold an oversight hearing on this issue, however, language was incorporated into Public Law 104-293, the Sustainable Fisheries Act, implementing a U.S.-Canada agreement on joint salmon stocks.

NOAA Fleet Modernization: As part of the 1992 NOAA Authorization Act, Congress required NOAA to prepare a fleet modernization plan for the Agency's aging research vessel fleet and to submit the plan to Congress. While NOAA has submitted the plan, fundamental questions remain whether these vessels should be replaced, the value of the data obtained and if these functions could be contracted out to private sector vessels. On June 15, 1995, the Subcommittee conducted an oversight hearing on the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's ocean and coastal programs. Testimony was received on a wide range of NOAA programs, including its fleet program.

National Marine Sanctuaries Program: Operated by NOAA, the National Marine Sanctuaries Program is comprised of 13 underwater preserves, stretching from Stellwagen Banks offshore Massachusetts, to the Florida Keys, to a Hawaiian Humpback Whale Sanctuary. The authorization of appropriations for this Act expired on September 30, 1996. The Subcommittee proposed to hold one or more hearings on NOAA's efforts to manage the existing sanctuaries on a very limited budget; the status of the newly designated sanctuaries; and NOAA's ability to solve problems in resource management, including pollution threats, salvage operations, conflicts with fishing and recreational interests. The hearing was held on March 21, 1996. On October 11, 1996, the President signed H.R.

543, the National Marine Sanctuaries Preservation Act, into law. The fundamental purpose of the National Marine Sanctuaries Program is to protect marine resources, such as coral reefs, sunken historical vessels, or unique habitats, while facilitating the “compatible” uses of those resources. The Act extended the authorization until September 30, 1999.

Artificial Reefs: In recent years, there have been several proposals to allow National Defense Reserve Fleet surplus ships to be sold for scrap or used for artificial reefs. The Subcommittee proposed to hold an oversight hearing on the effectiveness of artificial reefs in building new fish and shellfish habitats, but the Subcommittee took no action on this issue.

Saltonstall-Kennedy Program: The Saltonstall-Kennedy Grant Program is administered by the National Marine Fisheries Service and is used to provide grants for fisheries research and development projects. Funding is provided by the Department of Agriculture as a percentage of the gross receipts collected on imported fish and fish products. All grant projects undergo technical and industry review and are encouraged to have a cost-sharing component. The Subcommittee proposed to review the amounts received and granted under this program. The Subcommittee took no action on this issue.

Miscellaneous and Joint Agency Issues

Coastal Barrier Resource System: This Act was approved to reduce Federal expenditures in flood-prone coastal areas and to provide some environmental protection for certain coastal barriers. Inclusion in the system results in a prohibition on Federal funds for flood insurance, water and sewer grants, and highway construction. The authorization of appropriations for the program is set to expire on September 30, 1998. The Subcommittee proposed to hold an oversight hearing on the Act in 1996. During the 104th Congress, the Subcommittee conducted an oversight hearing on the Coastal Barrier Resources System and approved legislation that removed certain acreage from Coastal Barrier units in Florida, New York, and South Carolina. These modifications were signed into law by the President (Public Law 104-148, Public Law 104-265 and Public Law 104-333).

Marine Mammal Protection Act: This Act, first enacted in 1972, governs a variety of subjects, including public display, scientific research, subsistence use of marine mammals, and the incidental take of marine mammals during commercial fishing operations. Last year, Congress enacted a comprehensive reauthorization bill, which made a number of important changes to the Act. The Subcommittee intended to hold an oversight hearing this Fall on the Act and to evaluate the effectiveness of the new provisions and the implementation of regulations by the appropriate agencies, but the Subcommittee took no action on this issue.

North American Wetlands Conservation Act: The purpose of this Act is to conserve wetland ecosystems and the species they support, which are primarily waterfowl. While authorization of appropriations for this Act does not expire until September 30, 1998, the Subcommittee proposed to hold an oversight hearing on the effectiveness of this Act. The Subcommittee took no action on this issue.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON ENERGY AND MINERAL RESOURCES

I. INTRODUCTION

The Subcommittee on Energy and Mineral Resources had successful legislative initiatives in the 104th Congress, with three bills becoming law. The most significant piece of legislation to be enacted was the Federal Oil and Gas Royalty Fairness and Simplification Act. This comprehensive law will serve both the Federal Government and the Federal lessee to streamline, clarify and provide certainty for royalty payments made for Federal onshore and Outer Continental Shelf oil and gas production. The Act is the first legislative initiative in 13 years to cost-effectively increase the Nation's third largest source of revenue—oil and gas royalties. The bill enjoyed the support of 14 Governors from States cumulatively accounting for over 98 percent of the onshore Federal production. The Governors saw this bill as an avenue to participate more actively in collection of the significant source of revenue that Federal oil and gas production brings into the State treasuries. By assuming some of the Federal collection responsibilities, the States can do these jobs better, fairer, and less expensively, thereby increasing revenues to the State and Federal treasury.

Legislation was also enacted to end the Federal Government's participation in the production and refining of helium. The Helium Act reduces the deficit, ensures repayment of the Federal helium program debt, returns all proceeds from the sale of the facilities and equipment to the Treasury, and applies all revenue received from the private sector as the result of crude helium sales towards repayment of the debt. The Act gets the Federal Government out of the helium business, including sale of the stockpile, and shuts down an inefficient helium refinery without undue disruption of the private helium.

Additionally, legislation was enacted to authorize appropriations for a mining institute or institutes to develop domestic technological capabilities for the recovery of nonfuel minerals from the Nation's deep seabed, shallow Outer Continental Shelf sand and gravel resources, and arctic/cold water regions. A bill to reauthorize the National Geologic Mapping Act of 1992 was passed by the House of Representatives but failed to be acted upon by the full Senate.

The Subcommittee held a legislative hearing on a bill to amend the Mineral Leasing Act to provide for a royalty payment for heavy crude oil produced from the public lands which is based on the degree of API gravity. The Bureau of Land Management (BLM) has always had the authority to grant royalty reduction on a case-by-case basis. However, the agency has not provided many lessees relief because of the onerous application process. The Subcommittee pursued the BLM's proposed rule in a legislative hearing to broaden the scope of the models used to justify the benefits and trade-offs of royalty relief for higher gravity oil.

Furthermore, the Subcommittee held a legislative hearing and mark-up on a bill to amend the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 to determine the proper role of Federal oversight of State regulatory programs. After more than a dozen years since most States achieved primacy under the Act, the Office of Surface Mining can, and does, exercise authority to issue notices of violation to coal operators in primacy states where a valid State-issued permit has already been granted. These enforcement actions remain contentious for those State governments that adequately regulate active coal mining and for which the Federal role ought to be limited to broad oversight of the adequacy of States' enforcement provisions.

IV. OVERSIGHT ACTIVITIES OF THE SUBCOMMITTEE ON ENERGY AND MINERAL RESOURCES

A. Introduction

The Subcommittee on Energy and Mineral Resources was active in the oversight of Federal agencies and programs concerning exploration for and development (or nondevelopment, as the case may be) of minerals from Federal lands and interests in lands, including the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS). Additionally, the Subcommittee oversees the regulation of the impacts of surface-mined coal (and lignite) anywhere in the U.S. irrespective of the mineral ownership through jurisdiction of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act. In general, the Subcommittee's oversight activities endeavored to find ways to empower States with respect to decisions regarding onshore Federal mineral resources which clearly affect the States fiscally, and to establish rationale for reforms of OCS lease-related provisions which now diminish receipts to the U.S. Treasury.

Oversight hearings began immediately, with a hearing on the flight of domestic hardrock mineral exploration and development investment to overseas venues and its causes. Thereafter the Subcommittee examined the Fiscal Year 1996 budget proposals of the departmental agencies within its purview: the U.S. Geological Survey (USGS), Bureau of Mines, Minerals Management Service (MMS), Bureau of Land Management (energy and minerals programs), and Office of Surface Mining (OSM), with recommendations for the full committee budget views and estimates. The Subcommittee's recommendations with respect to OSM in particular were instrumental in the Appropriations Committee reporting a significantly reduced budget for that agency.

Subsequently, the Subcommittee held oversight hearings on issues involving barriers to sodium mining in Wyoming; streamlining of onshore Federal oil and gas lease activities via State agency substitution; allowing "primacy" States to regulate coal mine operators with lessened Federal enforcement interference in permit decisions; and the Administration proposal to sell off the OCS royalty stream and devolve MMS functions to another Federal agency. Hearings on oversight of energy policy generally (in Houston) and specifically with respect to the potential for Federal lands (including the OCS) to provide an exploration base for new discoveries and to increase domestic reserves were also held. Thereafter the Subcommittee examined the USGS' mineral resources survey program, as reviewed by a panel of the National Academy of Science/National Research Council; the Bureau of Land Management's (BLM) regulatory burdens on small oil and gas operators; taking royalty in-kind (rather than in-value) for certain Gulf of Mexico natural gas production; leasing and/or development moratoria for various portions of the OCS; and progress on negotiations between the States and BLM toward State takeover of oil lease inspection duties.

Agency Budget Oversight: The Subcommittee oversees four Interior Department agencies in toto and programs in two others: U.S. Geological Survey (USGS), Bureau of Mines (BOM), Office of Surface Mining (OSM), Minerals Management Service (MMS), the energy and minerals program of the Bureau of Land Management (BLM), and the minerals and geology program of the Forest Service (FS). On February 14, 1995, the Subcommittee examined these agencies' programs for streamlining and privatization opportunities. Budget oversight of the science agencies (USGS, BOM) occurred February 23, 1995, and examined opportunities for contracting out work or otherwise streamlining research programs. Outside witnesses familiar with the programs' output testified regarding prioritizing programs/turning work over to State agencies and the private sector, including orderly phase-out of the Federal Helium Reserve Program.

The Subcommittee's oversight contributed to the Full Committee's fiscal year 1996 Views and Estimates report to the Committee on Budget concerning the aforementioned agencies. The Subcommittee concluded, in particular, that OSM could and should absorb a significant reduction commensurate with a proper role of oversight of primacy States' programs rather than its current practice of performing Federal oversight of the States through direct inspection and enforcement activities. Ultimately, both Congress and the Administration agreed, via the Omnibus Appropriations Act (Public Law 104-131), which reduced OSM's Federal regulatory program budget by approximately 26 percent. Furthermore, Subcommittee recommendations regarding the Bureau of Mines and Geological Survey contributed to the merger of some of the former agency's functions into the latter, which was likewise mandated by Public Law 104-131. The other bureaus' programs within the Subcommittee bailiwick received little or none of the increase in funding sought by the Administration. For fiscal year 1997, the Subcommittee's oversight was less formal, but no less effective, as the Congress and the Administration effectively agreed to level funding for these programs.

Hardrock Mineral Exploration and Development: The Subcommittee explored investment trends for so-called hardrock minerals mining in an effort to ascertain ways to improve the U.S. business climate for such ventures, particularly with respect to access to public lands for exploration and development. Such oversight is preparatory for beginning the legislative process for reform of the Mining Law of 1872.

A hearing was held on January 31, 1995, examining factual investment data for trends in capital flow with industry and environmental testimony explaining reasons for these trends. An additional hearing with testimony from foreign nationals explaining their systems for balancing attracting investment versus regulatory oversight of mining proposals was scheduled after agency budget hearings in Spring 1995. A possible oversight hearing was proposed to focus on royalty definitional terms workable for the vast range of hardrock mineral commodities.

The oversight gained on this issue led Chairmen Don Young (R-AK) and Ken Calvert (R-CA) to introduce H.R. 1580, a bill to amend the general mining laws to provide a reasonable royalty from mineral activities on Federal lands, to specify reclamation requirements for mineral activities, and to create a State program for the reclamation of abandoned hard rock mining sites. H.R. 1580 served generally as the basis for provisions within H.R. 2491, the Balanced Budget Act of 1995, vetoed by the President on December 7, 1996, which would have levied a royalty on metallic (and certain other) minerals mined from public lands for the first time since 1847 when President Polk signed legislation repealing royalties on lead mined in Wisconsin and Missouri territories. Furthermore, H.R. 2491's Mining Law Revenue Act of 1995 would have required the payment of fair market value for the land within claim boundaries to be patented together with a right-of-reentry by the United States if the patented land is used for non-mining purposes thereafter.

Coal Mining Regulatory Reform: The Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 (SMCRA) governs the manner in which all coal is mined by surface methods in the U.S., and underground-mining operations for which surface impacts occur. SMCRA mandates regulatory primacy be turned over to the States which seek it and which meet a minimum program requirement. Since the mid-1980's all but two coal-producing States have achieved primacy, but OSM continues to "second guess" State regulatory agencies' decisions. Following the OSM budget oversight, the Subcommittee proposed to further explore abolition of the Federal oversight role of OSM.

After an oversight hearing held on June 27, 1995, Congresswoman Barbara Cubin (R-WY) introduced H.R. 2372, a bill to amend the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 to minimize duplication in regulatory programs and to give States exclusive responsibility under approved State programs for permitting and enforcement of the provisions of that Act. A similar bill was introduced in the Senate by Senator Robert F. Bennett (R-UT). A legislative hearing on H.R. 2372 was held in November, 1995, after which OSM and member States representatives of the Interstate Mining Compact Commission unsuccessfully attempted to negotiate their differences. A Subcommittee mark-up of H.R. 2372 was conducted in July, 1996. No further action was taken. As outlined above in the budget oversight section, OSM's program budget for Federal enforcement activities was significantly reduced in fiscal year 1996 and 1997 from previous levels, largely because of the Subcommittee's posture on oversight and by action on H.R. 2372.

Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) Oil and Gas Production-Boosting Initiatives: The OCS Lands Act of 1954 governs the leasing of tracts in Federal waters off our coasts for oil and gas exploration. This program is by far the biggest revenue raiser of all Department of the Interior programs and is likely the second biggest in all the Federal Government (after the Internal Revenue Service). The MMS collects about $3 billion per year in bonus bids, rentals and royalties from oil and gas producers, a portion of which goes into the Land and Water Conservation Fund for Federal and State land acquisition programs. The OCS leasing program has been subjected to numerous leasing and drilling bans via appropriations bills, and threatened executive order. The Subcommittee proposed to investigate the rationale for retention versus elimination of such bans on activity in various waters in an effort to find acceptable ways to increase production from the OCS.

Oversight hearings on "energy policy" generally were held in February and March 1996 with emphasis on the role of public lands and the OCS in raising domestic production levels. An oversight hearing on OCS leasing and drilling moratoria was held in July 1996 at which many Members expressed strong opinions regarding segments of the OCS adjacent to their States. No effective change from existing appropriations-based moratoria on OCS leasing was possible given the strongly bipartisan appeal for the status quo.

The Subcommittee planned an oversight follow-up to a 103d Congress hearing into “deepwater and frontier area” royalty relief to stimulate investment in parts of the Gulf of Mexico and Alaskan OCS. Issues to be discussed included: Is it necessary at projected resource prices? How should such relief be configured? Without other measures such as alternative minimum tax relief will a royalty “holiday” stimulate drilling? Oversight of MMS’ OCS Policy Committee recommendation for “conflict resolution” and of the property rights question regarding drilling bans on already leased OCS tracts were expected.

The Subcommittee participated strongly in the legislative effort to promote development of greater than 200 meters water depths tracts in the western and central Gulf of Mexico region. Public Law 104–58 contained such provisions. The first lease sale held by MMS after enactment gained over one-third of a billion dollars for the U.S. Treasury in bonus bids, no doubt stimulated by the provisions of the deepwater royalty relief law.

Onshore Federal Oil and Gas Initiatives: The BLM, lessor of Federal onshore minerals, is currently undergoing an oil and gas “performance review.” The Subcommittee proposed to hold an oversight hearing on the need for “heavy oil” royalty reduction to stimulate production from reservoirs with highly viscous crude oil, e.g. Kern County, California. The need for an oversight hearing was obviated when the Subcommittee held a legislative hearing on H.R. 699, a bill to amend the Mineral Leasing Act to provide for a royalty payment for heavy crude oil produced from the public lands which is based on the degree of API gravity. Thereafter, the BLM agreed administratively to reduce heavy oil royalties in a somewhat similar fashion, albeit with a slightly different formula. The pressure brought to bear by the Subcommittee’s action clearly contributed to the action taken by the Administration.

The Mineral Leasing Act of 1920 grants rights-of-way to Federal lessees for pipelines from producing fields but obligates “common carriers” to ensure equitable access to the transportation system. The Subcommittee proposed to hold an oversight hearing to explore the issues of ensuring this obligation is being met everywhere. The Subcommittee worked behind the scenes with the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight’s Subcommittee on Government Management investigating the Federal Government’s potential loss of royalty revenue from undervaluation of crude oil from Federal onshore and OCS leases in California. A Department of the Interior-led task force reviewed these allegations and recently announced that the Secretary would make demands of twenty different oil company lessees of the U.S. for back royalties of approximately $400 million, including interest. To date, approximately $160 million of demands have issued.

Disposition of Other Federal Minerals: The so-called fertilizer minerals, trona (a sodium carbonate mineral), phosphate and potash, are produced from Federal leases in California, Wyoming, Idaho and New Mexico. The Subcommittee proposed to hold an oversight hearing to examine a number of associated issues. An oversight hearing was held on May 9, 1995, on the issue of proper valuation of royalty rates in a factual situation such as occurs in the Green River Basin of Wyoming. Governor Geringer of Wyoming, among others, testified as to the importance of the trona industry to the State. The Secretary of the Interior delayed for a year an increase in the royalty rate, perhaps as a result of the Subcommittee hearing, but later held a lease sale for several sections of trona leases at an eight percent royalty rate.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON WATER AND POWER RESOURCES

I. INTRODUCTION

A. Legislation to streamline the Federal Government and move power out of Washington

There was a recognition by the 104th Congress that although the Federal Government had built major civil works projects throughout the United States, the Government is now involved in operating facilities and programs in which there is no longer a compelling Federal interest. In addition, insufficient operation and maintenance funds are available to Federal agencies for the maintenance of these aging Federal facilities, many of which continue to deteriorate. These facilities could be better maintained by non-Federal entities, including water districts and other units of local government. Citing these concerns, the Subcommittee approved several bills to move facilities out of Federal ownership, including:

S. 395/H.R. 1122 (Public Law 104-58), authorizes and directs the Secretary of Energy to sell the Alaska Power Administration.

The Power Marketing Administration Sale/Study (the study provisions of this language were included in H.R. 2491, the Balanced Budget Act vetoed by the President). The Resources Committee bill would have sold the Southeastern Power Administration, the underlying power generation assets, and the associated dams and reservoirs. The bill provided for the control of rate increases, protection of existing contracts and obligations, placed the sale assets under the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission control, opened the sale to both customers and non-customers, and provided further information for evaluating the sale of the remaining Power Marketing Administrations.

H.R. 3903, the Sly Park Unit Conveyance Act, would provide for the sale and conveyance by the Secretary of the Interior of the Sly Park Unit of the Central Valley Project to the El Dorado Irrigation District, Placerville, El Dorado County, California. The bill as amended was ordered favorably reported to the House of Representatives by voice vote (H. Rept. 104-768).

H.R. 3258, would direct the Secretary of the Interior to convey certain real property located within the Carlsbad Project in New Mexico to the Carlsbad Irrigation District. This bill was ordered reported from the Full Committee on September 18, 1996. No further action was taken.

Collbran Project Unit Conveyance. Language to direct the Secretary of the Interior to convey the Collbran Reclamation Project in Colorado to the Ute Water Conservancy District and the Collbran Conservancy District was approved by the Congress as part of H.R. 2491, the Balanced Budget Act, which was vetoed by the President.

B. Legislation to improve existing Federal programs and enhance agency flexibility

Several bills approved by the Subcommittee are designed to improve existing Federal programs by refocusing goals to meet contemporary needs, tightening or restructuring eligibility criteria, reducing authorization ceilings to reflect appropriations levels, or providing agencies with flexibility to make Treasury payments. Legislation approved by the Subcommittee in this area includes:

H.R. 930 (Public Law 104-20), amends the Colorado River Basin Salinity Control Act to authorize additional measures to carry out the control of salinity upstream of Imperial Dam in a cost-effective manner. Salinity in the Colorado River increases dramatically as the River makes its 1,400-mile journey. Almost half of the salinity occurs naturally, although another major contributor to the River's salinity is the use of water for agriculture. The new program would enable the Bureau of Reclamation to accept proposals from non-Federal entities for salinity control measures, and then provide funding to the most cost-effective proposals. The existing salinity control program was inflexible and relied on expensive hardware solutions to water quality problems. Public Law 104-20 will for the first time allow private companies and other organizations to participate in creative solutions to salinity control in the Colorado River Basin.

H.R. 799, Bonneville Power Administration Appropriations Refinancing Act, provides for the reconstitution of outstanding repayment obligations of the Administrator of the Bonneville Power Administration (BPA) for the appropriated capital investments in the Federal Columbia River Power System. This Act raised the low interest rates on BPA's old appropriated debt up to current Treasury rates. The Act actually increased revenues to the U.S. Treasury, because BPA agreed to pay an additional $100 million to be able to restructure this debt. An amended version of this bill was incorporated into Public Law 104-134.

H.R. 1743 (Public Law 104-147), reauthorizes an ongoing program administered through the United States Geological Survey. It provides a research funding program at the 54 State Water Resources Research Institutes located at the land grant university in each of the 50 States and several of the territories. These institutes are a primary link between the academic community, the water-related personnel in Federal and State government, and the private sector. The law reduces the authorization ceiling to reflect amounts actually appropriated for the program in recent years.

H.R. 1823 (Public Law 104-286), provides the Secretary of the Interior with the authority to accept prepayment from the Central Utah Water Conservancy District for the costs of certain project features associated with the Bonneville Unit of the Central Utah Project. This legislation will result in the Federal treasury receiving repayment by 2002 of over $140 million that would otherwise be repaid through 2048.

H.R. 3660 (Public Law 104-266), the Reclamation Wastewater and Groundwater Study and Facilities Act. This law amends a 1992 act (Public Law 102-575) that directed the Secretary of the Interior to study cost-shared opportunities to reclaim and reuse wastewater and naturally impaired ground and surface water, and authorized five specific feasibility studies and four demonstration projects. H.R. 3660 adds several new projects that would be eligible to receive Federal cost-share funding under the existing program. Further, the bill establishes more stringent criteria for receiving appropriations for any project, including requirements for feasibility studies and for cost-sharing agreements with the Secretary of the Interior.

H.R. 2738, the Central Valley Project Reform Act. This bill was intended to address concerns that had been raised about the implementation of the 1992 Central Valley Project Improvement Act (Title XXIV of Public Law 102-575). The bill was ordered reported from the Committee on December 13, 1995, but further action was suspended on the bill in May 1996, at the request of California water users and Interior Department officials. The bill did result in a formal administrative process involving the various stakeholders, initiated by the Interior Department in late 1995, to address ongoing problems with implementation of the 1992 Act. The success of this administrative process has yet to be determined, and it will be the subject of additional oversight hearings by the Subcommittee in the 105th Congress.

C. Legislation targeted to resolving specific problems

The Subcommittee approved several bills in the 104th Congress aimed at solving problems in specific geographic locations, or at targeting scarce Federal research funds. The bills moved by the Subcommittee to meet these objectives include:

S. 811 (Public Law 104-298), Water Desalinization Research and Development Act of 1996, authorizes research into the desalinization and reclamation of water and authorizes a program for States, cities, or qualifying agencies desiring to own and operate a water desalinization or reclamation facility to develop such facilities, and for other purposes.

S. 1467/H.R. 2819 (Public Law 104-300), Fort Peck Rural Water Supply System Act. This Act authorizes appropriations of $5.8 million for the construction of a rural water supply distribution facility for Fort Peck Rural County Water District, Montana. Currently, 95 percent of the residents of the area must haul their drinking water from Fort Peck Lake to meet domestic needs. The process of hauling water is difficult and expensive, particularly during the cold winter months. In addition, this area receives more than 280,000 visits each year by recreational users at Fort Peck Reservoir, and a reliable supply of good quality drinking water is needed to serve these visitors. The Act contains a sunset provision that deauthorizes the project if appropriations are not obtained within a specified timeframe.

H.R. 3910 (Public Law 104-318), Emergency Drought Relief Act of 1996. This Act provides emergency drought relief to the City of Corpus Christi and the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority, both in Texas, by suspending their repayment obligations to the Federal Government for five and three years, respectively. This will free up the money they need to develop alternate water supplies. The Act also provides that if the construction of alternative water supplies for the City of Corpus Christi requires a Federal permit for use of Bureau of Reclamation lands or facilities, the Secretary of the Interior shall issue such permit within 90 days of enactment.

IV. OVERSIGHT ACTIVITIES OF THE SUBCOMMITTEE ON WATER AND POWER RESOURCES

A. Introduction

Budget Overview: The Subcommittee proposed to hold a hearing on that portion of the President’s budget proposal falling within its jurisdiction each year. The Subcommittee held a hearing on that portion of the President's budget proposal falling within its jurisdiction on March 7, 1995. Administration officials representing the Department of Energy and the Department of the Interior testified.

Central Valley Project Improvement Act Implementation (CVPIA): The Subcommittee proposed to review actions taken by Federal, State and other organizations to implement the various provisions of the Central Valley Project Improvement Act (CVPIA). Early in the 104th Congress, the Resources Committee was contacted by a number of California interests, including irrigation districts, municipalities, and power customers concerned about the way provisions of the CVPIA were being implemented or interpreted. The Subcommittee held four hearings (in California as well as in Washington) related to the implementation of the CVPIA. In June of 1995, legislation was introduced to reform the CVPIA. After the introduction of the CVPIA Reform Act, the Department of the Interior started an administrative process to resolve problems with the implementation of the CVPIA—an explicit recognition that significant problems existed. The Subcommittee held an oversight hearing on the status of the administrative process. At that hearing, the Administration witness requested that action on the bill be suspended until the administrative process was completed. In May 1996, action on the CVPIA reform bill was suspended, conditioned on the administrative process producing real results and meeting its self-imposed deadlines.

On September 12, 1996, the Subcommittee held another oversight hearing on the administrative process. At that hearing, two stakeholder groups testified that some legislative changes to the CVPIA will be needed once the administrative process is completed. Some deadlines in the administrative process have slipped, and there is an ongoing concern that certain problems are not being addressed through the process at all.

Regulation Reform: The Subcommittee proposed to review the need for and advisability of reducing and eliminating those Federal rules and regulations falling within its jurisdiction. The Subcommittee conducted numerous investigations and informal reviews concerning the Bureau of Reclamation's regulatory program. Subcommittee Chairman John T. Doolittle (R-CA) joined Chairman Don Young (R-AK) in urging the Department of the Interior to comply with court settlements requiring the reissuance of the water conservation regulations under the Reclamation Reform Act of 1982. No formal Subcommittee hearings or other actions were taken.

Restructuring the Bureau of Reclamation: The Subcommittee proposed to review current efforts to downsize the Bureau of Reclamation and will consider new proposals relating to the further reduction or termination of the existence of that bureau. The Subcommittee held several hearings on Bureau of Reclamation operations. These hearings included: a March 30, 1995, oversight hearing on Bureau of Reclamation operational issues; a June 15, 1995, oversight hearing on the possible transfer of Reclamation facilities out of Federal control; field hearings in Oregon and Idaho in October 1995 on Federal Government actions affecting water rights; and a March 7, 1996, hearing on dams safety and deferred maintenance.

nance issues at Bureau of Reclamation facilities. The Subcommittee approved several bills to transfer specific Reclamation facilities out of Federal ownership, thereby reducing the size and scope of the Bureau of Reclamation.

California Bay—Delta Agreement: The Subcommittee proposed to review the agreement reached between the Federal Government, the State of California and various other parties relating to the protection of the Sacramento Delta estuary and the supply of water to farms and cities in a major portion of California. The issues related to the implementation of the December 1994 agreement are similar, and in some instances linked, to the implementation of the 1992 Central Valley Project Improvement Act (CVPIA). The Subcommittee's actions on the CVPIA are discussed above. However, the Committee was supportive of efforts to fund the Federal share of a balanced, long-term solution to the problems of the San Francisco Bay/Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta Watershed. This authorization language was included in Public Law 104-333 and Public Law 104-208.

Central Arizona Project Debt Repayment: The Subcommittee proposed to review proposals made by the Administration to restructure the debt currently held by the owners of the Central Arizona Project. Negotiations to reach a settlement agreement on the repayment issues pertaining to the Central Arizona Project (CAP) were unsuccessful, and these issues are now in litigation. The litigation has limited the ability of the Subcommittee to investigate certain issues that are the subject of the lawsuit. However, the Subcommittee did ask the General Accounting Office to conduct a preliminary investigation concerning the appropriateness of the Bureau of Reclamation's use of funds from the Lower Colorado River Basin Development Fund for certain costs related to the Central Arizona Project. The Subcommittee staff have also received briefings from the Department on the various Basin Funds, and on the operation of the Central Arizona Project. In addition, Chairman John T. Doolittle (R-CA) wrote the Department in September 1996 asking detailed questions about CAP operations. The Subcommittee will continue its oversight of the Bureau's role in the Central Arizona Project. Hearings are possible in the 105th Congress.

Sale of Federal Power Marketing Administrations: The Subcommittee proposed to review proposals to sell those agencies within the Department of Energy known as power marketing administrations (PMAs) which market the electrical power produced at Federal water projects. The Resources Committee approved provisions in its part of the reconciliation bill that would have sold the Southeastern Power Administration, the underlying power generation assets, and the associated dams and reservoirs. The bill provided for the control of rate increases, protection of existing contracts and obligations, placed the sale assets under Federal Energy Regulatory Commission control, opened the sale to both customers and non-customers, and provided further information for evaluating the sale of the remaining PMAs. However, only a study version of this language was included in H.R. 2491, the Balanced Budget Act vetoed by the President.

The debate over the various PMA proposals introduced or considered during the First Session of the 104th Congress raised many policy issues. Therefore, in December 1995 Chairman John T. Doolittle (R-CA) sent a letter to the General Accounting Office (GAO) requesting that the GAO conduct certain investigations. This request resulted in three separate GAO reports that were the subject of the following hearings: May 2, 1996, hearing on Pick-Sloan Project Repayment Issues; July 25, 1996, hearing on Deferred Maintenance and Energy Reliability Issues at Facilities Generating Power Marketed by the Southeastern Power Administration; September 19, 1996, hearing on accounting practices for Federal power marketing administrations.

Oversight of Bonneville Power Administration Management: The Subcommittee proposed to hold hearings on the actions taken by the management of the Bonneville Power Administration (BPA) relating to various matters of concern. The Subcommittee agreed to defer significant actions on the management of the Bonneville Power Administration until the December 1996 completion of the Comprehensive Review of the Northwest Energy System, a regional review commissioned by the four Northwest Governors.

Nonetheless, the Subcommittee did hold two hearings on BPA-related issues. The first hearing was on May 21, 1996, on Bonneville Power Administration Operations and the Status of the Comprehensive Review of the Northwest Energy System. The second hearing was a field hearing on November 7, 1996, on issues and recommendations concerning the August 10, 1996, Bonneville/Western U.S. Power Outage.

In addition, the Committee approved H.R. 799, the "Bonneville Power Administration Appropriations Refinancing Act," as amended, which provides for the reconstitution of outstanding repayment obligations of the Administrator of the Bonneville Power Administration (BPA) for the appropriated capital investments in the Federal Columbia River Power System. This Act raised the low interest rates on BPA's old appropriated debt up to current Treasury rates. The Act actually increased revenues to the U.S. Treasury, because BPA agreed to pay an additional $100 million to be able to restructure this debt. An amended version of H.R. 799 was eventually incorporated into Public Law 104-134.

Hoover Dam Visitors Center: The Subcommittee proposed to hold hearings on the expenditures over budget for the Hoover Dam Visitors center. Bureau of Reclamation officials were subjected to lengthy questioning on this issue at the March 30, 1995, oversight hearing on Bureau of Reclamation operational issues. Written follow-up questions on Hoover Dam were also submitted to the Department.

Oversight of Colorado River Operations: The Subcommittee proposed to hold hearings on the operation of the Colorado River in both the Upper and Lower basins. The Subcommittee held a May 11, 1995, hearing to examine the significant impacts of high salinity levels on human health and the environment. The Subcommittee subsequently moved legislation, now Public Law 104-20, to revise the Colorado River Basin Salinity Control Program.

With respect to the impact of hydropower production on Colorado River operations, the Subcommittee held a March 19, 1996, oversight hearing on Western Area Power Administration Construction and Maintenance Activities and Bureau of Reclamation Power Facilities Management.

Further, the issues raised with respect to the Central Arizona Project, discussed above, are linked to any investigation of Colorado River Operations, since the CAP was constructed to deliver Colorado River water within Arizona.

Water Technology Development: The Subcommittee proposed to hold hearings on various aspects of water technology development which will impact Federal waste water reclamation activities. Although the Subcommittee did not hold hearings on water technology development, the Committee did approve two bills to address waste water reclamation. They are: H.R. 3660 (Public Law 104–266), the Reclamation Wastewater and Groundwater Study and Facilities Act; and S. 811 (Public Law 104–298), the Water Desalinization Research and Development Act of 1996.

DOI Irrigation Drainage Program: The Subcommittee proposed to hold hearings on the Department of the Interior's Irrigation Drainage Program. A major unresolved drainage issue at the beginning of the 104th Congress was how to allocate the costs for the San Joaquin Valley Drainage Program and the cleanup of selenium from drainage water at the Kesterson Wildlife Refuge in California. This cost-allocation issue was finally resolved in the fiscal year 1997 Energy and Water Development Appropriations Act. Chairmen Don Young (R-AK) and John T. Doolittle (R-CA) wrote in support of this agreement. Beyond this action, the Subcommittee took no further actions on the Department's Irrigation Drainage Program.

B. Insular Affairs

The Subcommittee on Native American and Insular Affairs legislative focus on insular issues centered on increasing local self-government in the islands and reforming Federal policies for the administration of the insular areas. Significant legislative accomplishments reflected in laws enacted during the 104th Congress included the termination of the Department of the Interior's Office of Territorial and International Affairs and the political position of the Assistant Secretary for Territorial and International Affairs, reduction in the size of unnecessary Federal territorial staff and programmatic funding, phase-out of the special annual grant to the Northern Mariana Islands, and completion of a final resettlement plan for Rongelap Atoll. In addition, legislation was reported by the Committee to establish a process leading to the resolution of Puerto Rico's political status, the largest island group with 90 percent of the population of all of America's territories. These legislative and other activities include:

Title I of H.R. 602 (later incorporated into H.R. 1332) terminated the Department of the Interior Office of Territorial and International Affairs and the position of Assistant Secretary, and reduced Federal insular staff and program funding was provided for in the Fiscal Year 1997 Appropriations Act (Public Law 104-208).

Title III of H.R. 1332, which was reported by the Committee, would have immediately eliminated the annual special grant to the Northern Mariana Islands. Congress enacted an alternative phased-out of the funds in the 1997 Fiscal Year Appropriations Act (Public Law 104-208).

Originating as Title I of H.R. 1332, Public Law 104-208 provided for a final resettlement of the Rongelap Community and the radiological rehabilitation of the atoll.

H.R. 3024 provided a Federally-authorized process to resolve Puerto Rico's political status. Similar legislation was introduced in the Senate, S. 2019. The bill was reported unanimously by the Subcommittee and favorably by the Committees on Resources and Rules.

Title III of H.R. 602 would grant Hawaii jurisdiction for seven small U.S. territorial islands and atolls near the State. The legislation received support from the Senate of Hawaii, which adopted S.R. No. 21 on April 10, 1995, urging the Congress to support this provision. Companion legislation was introduced in the Senate (see S. 1906).

H.R. 3634, the Virgin Islands Organic Revision Act of 1996, was incorporated into H.R. 1332 and passed by the House. The measure increased the powers of local self-government for the Virgin Islands.

Title VII of H.R. 3721 provided a non-paid commission of limited duration involving the private sector to consider alternative economic development strategies for the Virgin Islands. The bill passed the House as part of H.R. 1332.

H.R. 2254 repealed the separate ballot requirement for the Delegate representing Guam. The bill was incorporated into H.R. 1332 and passed by the House.

H.R. 2624 established a non-paid commission of 18-months to address American Samoa's history and economic options. The bill was incorporated into H.R. 1332.

H.R. 1306 provided funding for economic development in American Samoa. The bill was incorporated into H.R. 1332. An alternative funding provision for American Samoa was provided for in the Fiscal Year 1996 Appropriations Act (Public Law 104-134).

H.J. Res. 192, the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act Amendments, was incorporated into H.R. 1332 and passed by the House.

H.R. 4067 would authorize the local election of a non-voting delegate to Congress for the Northern Mariana Islands. The bill was reported from the Committee on Resources.

H.R. 602 would authorize a commission to identify those individuals on Guam who qualify for World War II restitution. The bill was incorporated into H.R. 2041 and ordered reported.

H.R. 2159, which would provide for the transfer of certain lands on the Island of Vieques, Puerto Rico, to the Municipality of Vieques, was approved by the Subcommittee.

IV. OVERSIGHT ACTIVITIES OF THE SUBCOMMITTEE ON NATIVE
AMERICAN AND INSULAR AFFAIRS

A. Introduction

Native American Issues

Budget Overview: The Subcommittee held a hearing on that portion of the President's budget proposal falling within its jurisdiction for Fiscal Year 1996.

Administration of Indian Trust Accounts: The Task Force on Indian Trust Fund Management was created to review actions taken by the Department of the Interior to audit and account for mismanagement of Indian trust accounts. Much of the money which tribes receive from land or water settlements or treaty provisions, and which individual tribal members receive from the same sources or from oil or gas leases on reservation, is placed in trust fund accounts managed by the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA).

Hearings were held in Washington, D.C., Anchorage, Alaska, and Phoenix, Arizona. It was found that there are almost 317,000 such accounts and that the Department of the Interior (DOI), in reviewing a mere 2000 of these accounts, could not reconcile $2.4 billion in account transactions conducted since 1972. It is expected that a new Task Force will be created during the 105th Congress to continue that work performed during the 104th Congress.

Regulation Reform: The Subcommittee staff reviewed the need for and advisability of reducing and eliminating those Federal rules and regulations falling within its jurisdiction. Hearings were not held but may become necessary during the 105th Congress.

Restructuring of the Bureau of Indian Affairs: The Subcommittee staff reviewed various proposals to reorganize the BIA. It has been alleged that the BIA is the worst-run and most inept Federal agency in the Federal Government. The Subcommittee was concerned about claims by tribes that most of the money appropriated to the BIA is never received by the tribes, but is eaten up by the bureaucracy. These claims were disputed by officials within the DOI. Oversight hearings on proposals to reorganize the BIA may be held during the 105th Congress.

Promulgation of Rules Concerning Scope of Self Governance Program: Under the BIA's Self-Governance Program, tribes can contract with the BIA to perform services formerly provided by that agency. For example, the BIA maintains police forces on several reservations. Under self governance, a tribe can contract with the BIA to provide the service itself. The BIA then transfers to the tribe the block of funds allocated for that tribe's police force and allows the tribe do the hiring, supervision, and control. The Subcommittee staff reviewed the rules promulgated by the BIA concerning the scope of the programs which fall within the range of those tribes which choose to participate in the Self Governance Program.

Indian Gaming: The Subcommittee held hearings concerning various proposals to amend the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act of 1988 as well as the activities of the Indian Gaming Commission created pursuant to that Act. Although the conduct of Indian gaming has resulted in extensive litigation throughout the Nation, the 104th Congress, like those Congresses preceding it, was unable to craft and pass legislation which would resolve the many gaming-related issues in dispute between tribes and the States.

Insular Affairs

The Subcommittee on Native American and Insular Affairs dealt with oversight of insular issues primarily through legislative and oversight hearings in Washington and in the islands. The following are the oversight activities of the Subcommittee in addressing the insular affairs priorities identified in the Committee's Oversight Plan for the 104th Congress:

Economic Self-Sufficiency through Trade in U.S. Territories: A legislative hearing was held in Washington regarding "Consultation of and Efforts to Include Territories Regarding Free Trade Agreements," as contained in Title VII of H.R. 602. Oversight meetings were conducted with private industry in certain territories regarding the process of becoming part of the United States Custom Territory. There was continuous monitoring of the expansion of the North American Free Trade Agreement and the development of the Asia-Pacific free trade agreement of the Asia Pacific Economic Conference and the impact on the inclusion and exclusion of the territories.

The Impact of the Contract With America for the Territories: A legislative hearing was held which addressed the adverse impact of the current fiscal relationship between the Federal Government and the territories. The General Accounting Office produced testimony and documentation regarding the negative Federal budgetary impact due to the lack of fiscal integration: Federal expenditure in the territories exceeds receipts by more than $9 billion per year. The territories do not pay Federal taxes (except for Social Security taxes and certain fees and taxes on U.S.-source income) and a possessions tax credit. Generic legislation was developed to provide a mechanism for territories to opt for fiscal integration in exchange for special economic and fiscal incentives and equal treatment in benefits. Meetings were conducted with other Committees with fiscal, budget, and programmatic jurisdiction to develop a legislative proposal which produced a net gain in revenue to the U.S. Treasury while permitting fiscal integration with the territories. Congress acted to phase-out the possessions tax credit over ten years, but without providing for alternative economic and fiscal incentives and the option of fiscal integration for the territories (see Public Law 104-188 and GAO reports GAO/GGD-95-71 AND GAO/GGD-96-184R).

Consolidating Smaller Island Possessions: A legislative hearing was held regarding "The Insular Areas Consolidation Act," a major provision of H.R. 602. This measure would give the State of Hawaii the option for including in the State's jurisdiction a number of smaller territories which have historical, cultural, and geographic links to Hawaii. This would provide for increased local control over the future use of the islands by eliminating Federal administration. Discussions were conducted with offices of the Governor of Hawaii, members of the Legislature, other organizations and the owners of two of the islands. The Senate of Hawaii enacted Senate Resolution No. 21, supporting the "Insular Areas Consolidation Act," of H.R. 602. Companion legislation was introduced in the Senate, S. 1906.

Modification of Authority to the Northern Mariana Islands (NMI): Legislative and oversight hearings were held on a number of proposals to change Federal policies in the NMI regarding temporary authority provided to the islands before the residents became U.S. citizens and under the sovereignty of the United States. In part as a result of the Federal oversight process, the NMI modified their local tax rebate structure, increased enforcement of immigration practices, and authorized the establishment of an NMI private-public wage review board to establish a minimum wage on an industry-by-industry basis. Congress also acted to phase-out a special annual grant to the NMI, considered extending some mechanism to establish a Federal minimum wage, reviewed immigration practices and policies in the islands, and filed a report on the need for a non-voting delegate from the NMI to the House of Representatives.

Responding to the Results of the Puerto Rico Plebiscite: A joint hearing of the Subcommittee on Native American and Insular Affairs and the Subcommittee on Western Hemisphere of the Committee on International Relations was held in Washington during the first session of the 104th Congress on the results of the November 1993 Puerto Rico Status Plebiscite, in which a locally-defined enhanced "Commonwealth" definition received 48 percent of the vote, versus 46 percent for statehood, and four percent for independence. The Puerto Rico legislature requested Congress to respond to the plebiscite and to clarify what were the acceptable status alternatives to resolve Puerto Rico's status problem. Extensive discussions were held regarding all status alternatives. Formal separate responses from Chairmen and Minority Ranking Members of the committees of jurisdiction regarding various aspects of Puerto Rico's status were transmitted to the leadership of the Puerto Rico

House and Senate regarding the lack of viability of the 1993 enhanced “Commonwealth” ballot definition.

Extensive testimony was received during the Subcommittee’s legislative hearing in San Juan, Puerto Rico, on the United States–Puerto Rico Political Status Act, H.R. 3024. Continuing dialogue was conducted with the proponents of different status options for Puerto Rico, with numerous suggestions being incorporated into the legislation. An extensive report, H. Rept. 104–713, Parts I and II, was filed on H.R. 3024, legislation to provide a final response to the Puerto Rico plebiscite results through a complete and balanced process leading to full self-government for Puerto Rico. Additional discussions and input without and within the Congress regarding the substance and scope of a response to Puerto Rico’s political status resulted in modifications contained in an Updated United States–Puerto Rico Political Status Act, H.R. 4281. Discussions were also conducted on a bicameral basis and similar legislation was introduced in the Senate, S. 2019.

American Samoa Self-Sufficiency: Oversight and legislative hearings were conducted on various proposals to provide for increased self-sufficiency in American Samoa. Discussions were conducted with former and current leaders as well as the private sector on ways to improve the economy and efficiency in local government. Considerable input was sought and received from the Department of the Interior Inspector General regarding the establishment of measurable audit criteria to be used to advance accountability and self-sufficiency by the American Samoa Government. Congress enacted limited standards as conditions for receiving certain appropriated Federal funds for capital improvements and considered the establishment of a non-paid private-public commission to examine in part economic development alternatives for American Samoa.

Oversight of the progress of the Compacts of Free Association: A joint hearing was held by the Subcommittee on Native American and Insular Affairs and the Subcommittee on Asia and the Pacific of the Committee on International Relations regarding the Micronesian compacts of Free Association. Testimony was secured and input sought from diverse U.S. government and private sectors regarding the success of the current relationships under the Compacts and future prospects. Oversight is crucial as the United States is getting closer to the end of two 15-year relationships defined in Compacts of Free Association with the Republic of the Marshall Islands and the Federated States of Micronesia.

Disposal of Water Island in the Virgin Islands: Letters were written to the Department of the Interior during the first session to spur the Administration in completing the transfer of title of residential home sites to the lessees who had entered into contracts to purchase their lots in 1992. Title was transferred to private lessees and to the local government after two hearings of the Subcommittee in the second session of Congress.
